Dac Dak's Run Number 615 of 10th Jan 2000

Dac Dak had a very hard night on the port, & with it a terrible nightmare about a run with no All-Checks. So rather than have a mob of Hashers running all about the Coffs Port complaining of no All-Checks, Dac Dak decided to have one on every street corner in the Jetty area, so that if the Walkers wanted to take another route to the Runners, we could all have a social chat while taking in the view & wondering where the next All-Check might be. Needless to say, it was probably the longest shortest run in recent Hash history. (You can work that one out, can't you?) Two noted front runners had trouble recognising the All-Check symbol, while another Runner wearing a futuristic set of sunnies chose to ignore All-Checks at random. With the quantity of chalk expended at the Jetty, two out of your next three runs will be held there so that our children's education does not suffer. Dac Dak looked pretty pleased with herself by the time everyone got back to the Vietnam Vet's Memorial area, & served up a good old Aussie meal of BBQ'd snags, followed by enough Beesting to make even Alky happy.
